An aerial photograph of the Dubai Islands development, showing a large artificial island with a golf course, residential areas, and a marina, surrounded by the Dubai Creek and the Arabian Sea. The image is a high-angle shot, looking down at the island, which is a mix of green spaces, buildings, and water. The Dubai Creek is visible on the left, and the Arabian Sea is on the right. The island is connected to the mainland by a bridge. The overall scene is a mix of natural and man-made elements, with a focus on the island's layout and the surrounding water.

DREAM LIFE

Dubai Islands sits at the mouth of the Dubai Creek—the cradle of Dubai's history and vitality. As one of the city's most populated, historic, and significant regions, this new coastal archipelago extends from Deira's shoreline, making it the closest freehold development to Deira available to international buyers.

Dubai Islands is the final and newly launched island cluster within the masterplan, and a key component of the Dubai 2040 Plan.

Spanning 17 square kilometres and composed of five distinct islands, each offers its own charm and character. Redefining modern coastal living, it is poised to become one of Dubai's most desirable lifestyle destinations in the years ahead.
